STATEMENT OF JURISDICTION

Blue Sky b.v. (Claimant) has the honour to submit the present dispute and its memorandum before this SIAC Arbitral Tribunal at Bangalore, Arberia, under Article 6 of the Shareholders' Agreement under the SIAC Rules, seated in London and governed by principles of corporate and commercial law common to Arberia and England.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

I

ARBERIAN SATELLITE COMMUNICATIONS PROGRAM AND POLICY: In 1969, the Government of Arberia established the Arberian Space Organisation (ARSO) to carry out its national space program. It later constituted the Space Commission (SC) and established the Department of Space (DoS), after which ARSO was brought under DoS management. Kosmix was the commercial arm of DoS. Senior ARSO and DoS officials sit on Kosmix's board of directors. There is no codified law in Arberia on the grant of satellite capacity licenses or lease. In 1997, the Arberian Government approved the 'Framework for Satellite Communication Policy in Arberia' (SatCom Policy) with an aim to develop a healthy and thriving communications satellite as well as encouraging private sector investment in the space industry in Arberia, amongst other things.

II

ESTABLISHMENT OF AIR MEDIA PRIVATE LIMITED: In February 1998, Air Media was incorporated as a private company with the aim to provide multimedia data services on mobile devices in Arberia using satellite technology. Air Media's founding shareholders were 4 Arberian nationals who formerly worked at ARSO, NASA, and other space technology entities in Arberia and abroad. The four shareholders entered into a Founding Shareholders Agreement (FSA), which was not incorporated into the articles of association of Air Media. The company's articles of association were not registered under the Arberian Companies Act, 1956.

III

AIR MEDIA'S CONTRACT WITH KOSMIX FOR SATELLITE CAPACITY: In December 2000, Air Media and Kosmix entered into a Memorandum of Understanding, to explore space-based digital multimedia delivery opportunities based on new technologies that Air Media was developing by itself.

In January 2004, Air Media concluded an agreement with Kosmix (Capacity Lease Agreement or CLA) leasing out 5 transponders for the manufacture and launch by of "Aspiration-1" satellite by ARSO.

Under the CLA, Kosmix would be responsible for all necessary governmental approvals relating to orbital slot and frequency clearances, and to raise the funding for the satellite. Kosmix could terminate the CLA “for convenience” in the event “it is unable to obtain the necessary frequency and orbital slot coordination approval on or before the pre-shipment review of the particular satellite.” The parties’ performance of the CLA would be “suspended” in the case of “force majeure”.

All disputes relating to this agreement, including its validity, were to be submitted to arbitration under the SIAC Rules, to be seated in New Delhi. Arberian law governed the contract.

IV

THE NEW INVESTMENT INTO AIR MEDIA: In September 2004, two new shareholders were brought into Air Media. The rights attaching to each class of shares were specified in a Shareholders Agreement (SHA) entered into by and between all shareholders and Air Media, which gave different voting rights to Class A (Blue Sky), Class B (Space Age) and Class C(Founder) shareholders. The SHA was not incorporated into Air Media’s articles of association.

All disputes relating to the SHA, including its validity, were to be submitted to arbitration under the SIAC Rules to be seated in London and decided by three arbitrators. The SHA was to be governed by “principles of corporate and commercial law common to Arberia and England.” (Article 6, SHA)

V

THE PERFORMANCE OF THE CLA: In July 2004, ARSO placed a proposal before a regular meeting of the SC seeking budgetary support for the design, manufacture and launch of a new satellite to be called Aspiration-1. The SC approved the proposal but the minutes of the SC meeting do not make any reference to the CLA.

In August 2004, at a regular Cabinet meeting, the Cabinet approved the DoS’ Note and Kosmix conveyed to Air Media that it had received the necessary approval for building, launching, and leasing the capacity of a new satellite.

VI

TERMINATION OF THE CLA: In June 2009, a new chairman took over at ARSO. He ordered a committee “to review and examine the legal, commercial, procedural and technical aspects” of the CLA, which found certain procedural and technical lapses in the same. Following this, DoS sought legal advice from both the Ministry of Law and Justice and the government law officers, who opined that the agreement be terminated for ‘convenience’ and ‘force majeure’ under Article 8 and 9 of the Agreement. In light of the 2 G Spectrum scam, the Media reported a similar view on the CLA between Air media and Kosmix. The Prime Minister and Law Minister made statements that in light of the government policies with regard to allocation of spectrum having undergone a change, they would annul the agreement. Based on this communication, on 25 January 2011, Kosmix wrote to Air Media that it would annul the agreement under Article 8 and 9, and the amounts paid by Air Media to Kosmix under the CLA will be reimbursed.

VII

THE SHAREHOLDERS’ DISPUTE: A meeting of Air Media’s board was held on 24 December 2010, wherein Blue Sky wished to negotiate a full reimbursement of Air Media’s payments to Kosmix. Space Age and the Founding Directors wished initiate legal correspondence against Kosmix. All the directors agreed that they needed to consider the matter further and possibly take legal advice. No decision was taken. The Board met again on 27 December 2010, and a vote was taken on whether legal correspondence should be initiated against Kosmix, where Blue Sky vehemently opposed the same but were outnumbered, as it was an ordinary matter discussion. As part of the second Agenda, Blue Sky Directors introduced a draft special resolution proposing the voluntary winding up of Air Media, which the Chairman did not propose as both the Founder Directors as well as the Space holder directors held could not be introduced without consultation.

On 31 December 2010, Blue Sky served a Notice of Arbitration jointly on Air Media, Space Age, and the Founders claiming breaches of the SHA and appointing one arbitrator (SHA Notice of Arbitration).

On 26 January 2011, Air Media issued a Notice of Arbitration to Kosmix under the CLA seeking annulment of Kosmix’s purported termination of the CLA and/or damages including lost profits (CLA Notice of Arbitration).

On 1 February 2011, Air Media, Space Age and the Founders jointly sent a Response to the SHA Notice of Arbitration, denying Blue Sky's claims in entirety, and making counterclaims. They jointly appointed the second arbitrator. On 27 February 2011, the two arbitrators wrote to the parties that they had agreed on the presiding arbitrator and that the Tribunal was now constituted. The first hearing will take place in Bangalore, Arberia.

ISSUES RAISED

The following questions have been raised before this Hon'ble Tribunal to consider:

- I. In relation to Issues (II)-(IV), what is the content of law applicable to the SHA?

- II. Under the law applicable to the SHA, is it valid and enforceable?

- III. Under the law applicable to the arbitration agreement, does the Arbitral Tribunal have jurisdiction to decide whether the directors acted in bad faith or violated their fiduciary duties when casting their votes on 27 December 2010?

- IV. Under the law applicable to the SHA, are the decisions taken at the 27 December 2010 meeting valid?

SUMMARY OF ARGUMENTS

I. THE CONTENT OF LAW APPLICABLE TO ISSUES (2)-(4)

The principle of jura novit curia does not apply to common law countries following the Anglo-American system of jurisprudence. As per the SIAC Rules and English Arbitration Act, 1996, the arbitrator is to take into consideration the substance of the facts and legal arguments put forth by the parties and would apply the rules of law designated to the parties to the substance of the dispute and is discouraged from undertaking its own investigation.

A. Law Applicable to the Substance Of the Contract

The law that applies to the SHA in this present dispute is principles of corporate and commercial law common to Arberia and England, forming a common, neutral set of principles designed to ensure that no party is in a more favourable position than the other. This is the tronc commun doctrine, which implies that the parties have expressed their intention that their relationship be, in no way, governed by their national laws.

B. Law Applicable to the Arbitration Agreement

The law applicable to the arbitration agreement is the English law, the English Arbitration Act, 1996. In the absence of an express choice of law applicable to the arbitration agreement, the law of the seat governs the arbitration clause. This is based on the implied intent of the parties to seat the arbitration in London.

II. VALIDITY OF THE SHA UNDER THE APPLICABLE LAW

Under the applicable law, the SHA is valid as consensual agreements between shareholders that are not incorporated into the articles are enforceable insofar as they are not contrary to the articles of the company but are not enforceable as a regulation of the company and do not bind it. However, they are binding among the parties as a valid personal contract between them. As Air Media is a party to the SHA, it is bound by its terms. Thus, the Respondents are all bound by the SHA and the Claimant's affirmative vote is to necessarily be obtained in order to commence legal proceedings or arbitration.

a. ALL PARTS OF ARTICLE 1 ARE VALID

It is submitted that all parts of the SHA are valid under the applicable law, namely, the right of the Claimant's nominee director to veto any decision of the board relating to commencement of legal proceedings or arbitration, the right to require that the founding shareholders vote with the Claimant on matters of winding up, preferential repayment of the Claimant in the event of winding up and the right of the Claimant to appoint up to three directors to the company's board are valid and recognised rights under the applicable law.

i. THE ARBITRAL TRIBUNAL CAN ORDER SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF ARTICLE 1

Under the applicable law, it is a recognised principle that arbitral tribunals can order specific performance as a remedy. Contractual relations such as voting agreements are examples of agreements which can be specifically enforced. Given the fact that monetary compensation would not benefit the Claimant as commencement of legal proceedings or arbitration would infect its other investments, it is appropriate that the Tribunal grant specific performance of the SHA.

1. THE LAW OF THE CONTRACT GOVERNS THE POWER TO ORDER SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE

Remedies can be granted only if there is a valid contract in existence. Thus, the power to grant remedies stems from the contract. Hence, law governing the substantive part of the contract must recognise providing specific performance as a remedy. Under the applicable law, it has been established that Arbitral Tribunals have the power to provide specific relief as a remedy.

III. THE TRIBUNAL HAVE JURISDICTION OVER THE INTRA-CORPORATE DISPUTE AND THE TERMINATION OF THE CLA WAS LAWFUL

The Arbitral Tribunal has the jurisdiction to arbitrate disputes of fiduciary duties and acts of bad faith of the directors. These intra-corporate disputes fall within the scope of the arbitration agreement. This is based on the broad wording of the arbitration agreement, which under English law allows arbitration of fiduciary disputes and acts of bad faith. The arbitrability of the dispute is also not contrary to public policy as provided under the English law. The tribunal has jurisdiction to decide upon the intra-corporate disputes in the present case. As the disputes are arbitrable, the scope of the tribunals review also extends to deciding the reasons given by the directors for the termination of the CLA under Arberian Law. The termination of the CLA is lawful and in accordance with the laws of Arberia. The conditions for the invocation of force majeure have been fulfilled by the Claimants, whereby Kosmix exercised reasonable care to meet the conditions under the CLA. The termination under Article 9 was due to the sovereign decision of the Government of Albania. Moreover, Air Media did not take necessary approvals for terrestrial spectrum and the policy violations in the allotment of the license would render the CLA termination lawful under Albanian Law.

IV. THE MEETING HELD ON 27 DECEMBER 2010 WAS INVALID

The meeting that took place on 27th December is invalid, as it is important that the contents of a notice and agenda are to state the business to be transacted at the meeting. The notice must also be of reasonable length of time, and a resolution is invalid where it was passed at a meeting of which too short a notice was given and which did not state the purpose of the meeting. The SHA was not complied with in terms of the voting rights, and the arbitration tribunal has the power to grant remedies such as a declaratory relief and specific performance, and can also ask the respondents to withdraw the notice of Arbitration.

ARGUMENTS ADVANCED

1. With respect to issues (2)-(4), what is the content of law applicable to the SHA?

A. LAW APPLICABLE TO SHA

The principle of jura novit curia embodies the court's power to base its decisions upon law not advanced by the parties during the procedure.¹ In common law jurisdictions, it is presumed that the court does not know the law and is confined to adjudicate the case on the exclusive basis of the legal pleadings of the parties' counsel. The rule is not a part of English law² and is not applied to foreign laws pled in English courts³. Section 34(1)(2)(g) of the EAA, 1996, provides the Tribunal with the power to decide all matters including the extent of ascertaining the facts and the law. Where the seat of arbitration is in England or Wales, a tribunal is bound to apply the English approach to determining the content of foreign law.⁴ Rule 17.2 of the SIAC Rules, 2010 states that the parties shall state in their submissions, a statement of facts and legal grounds supporting the claim together with the relief claimed. Rule 27.1 states that the Tribunal would apply the rules of law designated by the parties to the substance of the dispute. The Tribunal is discouraged from engaging in independent investigations⁵ and is confined to adjudicate the case on the basis of the legal pleadings of the parties. The law that applies to the SHA in this present dispute is principles of corporate and commercial law common to Arberia and England,⁶ forming a common, neutral set of principles designed to ensure that no party is in a more favourable position than the other. In the Liamco Arbitration,⁷ the Arbitral Tribunal held that any part of Libyan law in conflict with the principles of international law was to be excluded.⁸ This is the trunc commun doctrine, which implies that the parties have expressed their intention that their relationship be, in no way, governed by their national laws.⁹ The Arbitral Tribunals¹⁰ and the Courts¹¹ have applied this doctrine.

B. LAW APPLICABLE TO THE ARBITRATION AGREEMENT

The law applicable to the arbitration agreement is the EAA, 1996. The concept that the seat governs arbitration is established in both the theory and practice.¹² In the absence of an express choice of law applicable to the arbitration agreement, the law of the seat governs the arbitration clause,¹³ based on the implied intent of the parties to seat the arbitration in London.¹⁴ The conduct of the arbitral proceedings in Bangalore does not effect the choice of law regarding the arbitral seat.¹⁵ The foundation for application of distinct law is the doctrine of separability¹⁶ which treats the arbitration clause as distinct.¹⁷ The SIAC rules provide the parties the freedom to agree upon the seat.¹⁸ An agreement as to the seat is analogous to an exclusive jurisdiction clause.¹⁹

C. LAW APPLICABLE TO ARBITRABILITY OF THE INTRA-CORPORATE DISPUTE

Arbitrability is a condition for validity of the arbitration agreement. The lex arbitri is applicable in the determination of the arbitrability²⁰ as it is an accepted proposition that the law applicable to the arbitrability of the dispute is the law of the seat.²¹

2. VALIDITY OF THE SHA UNDER THE APPLICABLE LAW

A pertinent question that arises when deciding upon the validity of the SHA is whether principles common to Arberian [A] and English [B] company law allows shareholders to enter into agreements among themselves outside the scope of the articles.

A. THE SHA IS VALID UNDER ARBERIAN COMPANY LAW

The ACA, 1956 is silent regarding whether shareholders' agreements are valid and enforceable. The Arberian Supreme Court upheld the rights of shareholders to enter into agreements among themselves which may or may not include the company as a party to such an arrangement.²² The Bombay High Court²³ interpreted *Rangaraj*²⁴ to be applicable not only to restrictions on sale of shares, but also to all private agreements between shareholders. The abovementioned cases lay down the requirement of incorporation of the SHA into the articles of the company for it to be enforceable. The SHA was not incorporated into Air Media's articles of association.²⁵ It is submitted that the requirement of incorporation into the articles is an antiquated requirement that cannot be used to deny the enforceability of the SHA. The Privy Council²⁶ held that 'no law that precludes the shareholders from contracting for value that they shall each submit to any reasonable restriction which they choose to agree to.' Further, the Bombay High Court²⁷ held that the Supreme Court in *S.P. Jain*²⁸ does not in any way hold that transfer of shares agreed between shareholders inter se does not bind them or cannot be enforced like any other agreement. That means that it is open to the shareholders to enter into consensual agreements, which are not in conflict with the articles of association, the Act and the Rules, in relation to the shares held by them, and such agreement can be enforced like any other agreement. The Bombay High Court²⁹ held consensual agreements between shareholders relating to their shares can be enforced like any other agreement and there is no requirement for them to be embodied in the articles of association. The Supreme Court³⁰ observed that it did not subscribe to the view in *Rangaraj*³¹. Shareholders have the power to enter into any agreement in the best interests of the company, but the agreement cannot be contrary to the articles.³² The provisions of the SHA are not contrary to the articles. The SHA creates classes of rights that are exercisable by the three classes of shareholders. Thus, the rights of the equity shareholders have been validly varied to this effect. As per section 106 of the ACA, the variation of the rights attached to a class of shares has to be authorized by the articles of the company. The articles of Air Media were registered under the ACA and mirrored the provisions of Table A of the ACA.³³ Regulation 3(1) of the articles provides that the rights attached to the classes of shares may be varied with the consent of the members. The shareholders had mutually agreed to enter into an SHA, thus, it can be inferred that this variation took place with the consent of the members. Therefore, the variation of rights is not repugnant to section 106 either. Thus, under Arberian law, the SHA and the different classes of rights created under it are valid and enforceable.

B. THE SHA IS INVALID UNDER ENGLISH COMPANY LAW

Shareholders' agreements have been used to eradicate the tyranny of the majority or to distribute voting rights among the shareholders³⁴ and have the advantage of privacy because they do not have to be filed at the Companies House.³⁵ Shareholders' agreements have been recognized as valid.³⁶ Courts have held that such arrangements are not prohibited by law, by good morals or public order.³⁷ The only ground on which an SHA can be challenged is if it frustrates the operation of mandatory, statutory corporate powers.³⁸ In the present case, the SHA does not require that the company contract out of its statutory power. In the case of Russell,³⁹ the House of Lords held that the shareholders' agreement regulating voting rights of members was valid and enforceable, notwithstanding its non-incorporation into the articles. It further held that the agreement was enforceable against the parties to the agreement, and not against the company in the event that any clause contained in the agreement is in conflict with an existing legislation.⁴⁰ It held that as between the shareholders, the clause was a valid personal agreement⁴¹ and that a promise by shareholders as to how they will exercise their votes is valid and can be enforced by injunction, if need be. This flows from the general proposition that the right to vote is a property right which a shareholder is free to exercise his own selfish interests, and an agreement between shareholders as to how to exercise their votes is valid and enforceable⁴² as a private binding contract between the members for the time being of the company⁴³ so long as they do not affect third parties or the general public.⁴⁴ The jurisprudence of the company has to reflect the reality of free incorporation.⁴⁵

The variation of class rights is valid under English law as section 630 of the ECA allows for variation if the holders of the shares consent. Under the applicable law, consensual agreements between shareholders that are not incorporated into the articles are enforceable insofar as they are not contrary to the articles of the company but are not enforceable as a regulation of the company and do not bind it. However, they are binding among the parties as a valid personal contract between them. Thus, the Respondents are bound by the SHA and the Claimant's vote is to be obtained in order to commence legal proceedings or arbitration.

a. ALL PARTS OF THE SHA ARE VALID

All parts [A-D] of Article 1 of the SHA are valid as per the applicable law.

A. RIGHT TO VETO DECISION OF BOARD OF THE COMPANY TO COMMENCE LEGAL PROCEEDINGS OR ARBITRATION

A board of a corporation is elected – at least in substantial part – by the firm's shareholders.⁴⁶

This helps ensure that the board remains responsive to the interests of the firm's owners.⁴⁷ Section 291 of the ACA describes the general powers of the board and does not explicitly mention that the business of the company is to be vested solely in the board. In the absence of such a provision either in the articles or in the ACA, it is implied that directors are to obey the instructions of the shareholders. The Calcutta High Court⁴⁸ referred to Halsbury's Laws of England which stipulate that in the absence of any contract to the contrary in the articles, the majority of the members of the company are entitled to decide, even to the extent of overruling the directors, whether an action in the name of the company should be commenced or allowed to proceed. Hence, the majority of the shareholders of a Company have the ultimate control of its affairs and are entitled to decide whether or not an action in the name of the Company shall proceed. This proposition is accepted in England, the principles of which can be extended to Arberia. The English Commercial Court⁴⁹ has held that English law and Indian law share the same principles, unless proven otherwise. Courts have permitted members of the company to decide whether legal proceedings should commence in the name of the company.⁵⁰ The right of the director appointed by the Claimant to veto any decision of the Board to commence legal proceedings or arbitration is a valid right. It is possible for members in general meeting to control the board of directors by passing an ordinary resolution, provided the resolution is not inconsistent with the Companies Act or the articles.⁵¹ It has been argued that *Marshall*⁵² was correctly decided and that shareholders are entitled to interfere in companies.⁵³ In the absence of any contract to the contrary, the majority of shareholders in a company have the ultimate control of its affairs and are entitled to decide whether or not an action in the name of the company may proceed.⁵⁴ Professor Gower notes that leaving the power of initiation of litigation solely with the board would be an unsound policy as it may operate against the interests of the company in some circumstances.⁵⁵ Even if the board does not wish to sue, it is open to the shareholders collectively by ordinary resolution to decide to do so.⁵⁶ Nominee directors are nominated to ensure that the interests of the institution they represent are duly or effectively safeguarded.⁵⁷ Since the director appointed by the Claimant is their nominee director, it is his job to ensure that the interests of the Claimant are protected. Thus, creation of such right in the SHA is valid, as English law provides that majority shareholders can have control over the affairs of the company. In the present case, it is possible for the members to decide whether action should commence in the name of the company.

B. VOTING AGREEMENTS:

The right of the Claimant to require that Class C shareholders vote along with it any matter pertaining to the winding up of the company is a valid right stemming from valid pooling agreement, enforceable between the shareholders. Pooling agreements have been defined⁵⁸ as ‘an agreement between two or more shareholders which generally provides that in exercising any voting rights, the shares held by the shareholders shall be voted as provided therein.’ Pooling agreements constitute a contract and held that agreements are enforceable because the right to vote is a ‘proprietary right’ of the shareholder.⁵⁹ In England, it is an established principle that an agreement between two or more shareholders to coordinate their votes is lawful, as it is a contract between some or all of the members of a company by which they agree qua shareholders to ensure that their company will be run in a particular way.⁶⁰ The vote of a shareholder is a part of his property and may be exercised, or contracted for, as he sees fit.⁶¹ Shareholders can acquire, by contract, the right to compel sufficient of his fellow members to exercise their votes against a resolution and thereby to ensure that resolution’s defeat.⁶² The validity of agreements with voting agreements with a partial restriction have been upheld.⁶³ So long as the voting control remains with the shareholders who were parties to, and bound by, the original agreement, that agreement will continue to provide an effective veto, and a new member can be outvoted accordingly.⁶⁴ An agreement between shareholders as to how they would vote was a valid personal obligation and would not become the regulation of the company⁶⁵ Shareholders exercising their rights under a shareholders' agreement can use their votes as they wish.⁶⁶ The right to take a decision to wind up the company voluntarily is an important right of the shareholder⁶⁷ and there is no legal obligation on the part of the shareholder to give his or her vote merely with a view to what other persons may consider the interests of the company at large.⁶⁸ Thus, the provision is valid.

C. RIGHT TO RECEIVE PREFERENTIAL REPAYMENT IN CASE OF WINDING UP OR REPAYMENT OF CAPITAL

A shareholders' agreement may provide for a preferential payment of dividends and capital upon liquidation to the parties to the agreement⁶⁹ and is a valid contractual right. The preferential repayment to the Claimant would operate qua the existing shareholders, insofar as sections 529A and 530 of the ACA 175 and 176ZA of the English Insolvency Act, 1986, have been complied with first before the preferential right operates among them.

D. RIGHT TO APPOINT DIRECTORS

One of the features of the corporate form underlying corporate governance is the existence of a delegated management, which implies that shareholder influence is exercised indirectly, by electing directors.⁷⁰ Section 255(2) of the ACA states that subject to the regulations in the articles of the company, the directors of a private company which is not a subsidiary of a public company will be appointed by the company in general meeting.⁷¹ The provisions of the articles are silent as to the appointment of directors, implying that all the directors will have to be appointed by the shareholders. There is nothing in the ACA or the articles that prevent the shareholder from exercising the rights to appoint a certain number of directors to the board of the company. Thus, the provision mandating that the Claimant can appoint three directors is valid under Arberian law. The ECA says leaves the means of appointing directors to the articles of association.⁷² As the law permits that shareholders appoint directors, an agreement specifying who shall hold these offices is valid.⁷³ Article 1 of the SHA provides that the Claimant has the power to appoint three directors to the board by way of ordinary resolution, as stipulated in Regulation 17. There is nothing to prevent the articles from providing that a particular class of shareholders, rather than shareholders as a whole, can appoint directors.⁷⁴ Extra voting rights were given to shareholders to remove a director from office have been held to be valid.⁷⁵ Thus, extra voting rights to a class of shareholders to appoint a director would not be illegal, hence, the provision is valid.

i. THE ARBITRAL TRIBUNAL CAN ORDER SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF THE VALID PARTS OF ARTICLE 1

The Arbitral Tribunal has the power to grant specific performance under Arberian [A] and English [B] law. Most domestic laws empower an Arbitral Tribunal to award specific performance.⁷⁶ Even absent an express agreement conferring such powers, courts have routinely upheld grants specific performance of contractual obligations.⁷⁷ Courts have observed that the words used to confer power to resolve the dispute confer ‘unlimited flexibility’ in the method of its resolution.⁷⁸ Specific performance has been granted by Arbitral Tribunals in arbitrations by the ICSID.⁷⁹ Awards that required specific performance of a contract to deliver coal⁸⁰ and cotton⁸¹ have been upheld, and such relief is not contrary to the functus officio doctrine.⁸² Parties can agree that the discretion to grant specific performance can be exercised by a forum of their choice.⁸³

A. ARBITRATOR'S POWER TO GRANT SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE IN ARBERIA

This power has been upheld by the Supreme Court⁸⁴ (upholding decisions of the Bombay⁸⁵, Punjab⁸⁶ and Calcutta⁸⁷ courts) as there is no prohibition in the Specific Relief Act, 1963, that the issues relating to specific performance cannot be referred to arbitration. Specific performance of a contract for transfer of shares in a private limited company has been granted by Indian courts,⁸⁸ holding that specific performance may be enforced when there is no standard for ascertaining the actual damage caused by the non-performance of the act or when the act agreed to be done is such that compensation in money for its non-performance would not afford adequate relief.⁸⁹ In the instant case, the decisions taken at the meeting were in violation of the Claimant's rights under Article 1 of the SHA. The Claimant was restrained from providing an affirmative vote to commence legal proceedings or arbitration, despite the right being granted to it.⁹⁰ A breach of such a nature that has the possibility of affecting all of the Claimant's investments in different companies cannot be compensated by way of monetary damages, and specific performance would be the only adequate remedy in order to ensure that the Respondents adhere to the terms of the SHA.

appropriate.⁹¹ Voting agreements are contractual relations. English law of equity allows for the granting of negative/prohibitive injunctions binding shareholders to refrain from voting in a general meeting for particular resolutions.⁹² Courts can compel shareholders to vote in a particular manner based on their contractual obligations.⁹³ In Russell,⁹⁴ the House of Lords accepted the availability of negative injunctions when a voting agreement interfered in the provisions of the statute and the articles of association. The Court in *Puddephatt*⁹⁵ ordered the defendant to vote according to the instructions of the plaintiff based on the shareholder agreement, because in the preceding general meeting the defendant had voted against the instructions of the plaintiff.⁹⁶ Section 48(5)(b) of the EAA, 1996 provides Arbitral Tribunals with the power to grant specific performance as a relief. Contracts among majority shareholders to elect certain persons as directors have been held to be valid, the relief of specific performance was granted as the enforcement of such a right ‘damages nobody.’⁹⁷ The legal proceedings would only be able to commence in the name of the company if the Claimant provides its affirmative vote with regard to the same.

1. THE LAW APPLICABLE TO THE CONTRACT IDENTIFIES THE TRIBUNAL’S POWER TO ORDER SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE

The remedies powers of an international Arbitral Tribunal are defined by the parties’ arbitration agreement. Parties may also have the commercial intent to grant the arbitrators broad powers to fully and satisfactorily resolve their dispute in a practical manner.⁹⁸ The purpose of contractual remedies is to place a promisee in the position he would have enjoyed had his promisor performed.⁹⁹ Specific performance is the most accurate method of achieving the compensation goal of contract remedies because it gives the promisee the precise performance that he purchased.¹⁰⁰ Specific performance is a right that arises from the contract that enforces the actual performance that the claimant is entitled to according to its terms.¹⁰¹ In Arberian Supreme Court¹⁰² held that there must be a valid contract in existence in order to claim specific performance. A plaintiff claiming specific performance has to show that a valid contract exists.¹⁰³ There must be a lawful, binding, contract on all the certain, precise terms that Court can order and supervise the exact performance of.¹⁰⁴ Article 10(1)(c) of the Rome Regulation, 1980 (incorporated into English law by way of Article 10(1) of the Contracts (Applicable Law) Act, 1990) provides that the law applicable to contractual obligations will govern the consequences of total or partial breach of obligations or damages. The damages from a broken contract is considered to be arising naturally from the breach of contract.¹⁰⁵ Claimants were entitled to remedies the material law allows courts to order specific performance of a contract.¹⁰⁶

3. THE TRIBUNAL HAS JURISDICTION OVER THE INTRA-CORPORATE DISPUTE

The Claimant humbly contests the jurisdiction of the Tribunal regarding the intra-corporate dispute and the scope of review over the reasons of the directors for their votes. This argument is fivefold: Firstly, the Tribunal has competence to determine its own jurisdiction [A]. Secondly, under the law applicable to the arbitrability of the dispute, corporate disputes concerning fiduciary obligations and bad faith fall within the substantive scope of the arbitration agreement [B]. Thirdly, the intra-corporate disputes of fiduciary nature and allegations of bad faith against the directors are arbitrable under the SHA [C]. Fourthly, the arbitrability of these disputes is not contrary to public policy [D]. Fifthly the Arbitral Tribunal has the power to decide for its own purposes that the Government's termination of the Capacity Lease Agreement (hereinafter CLA) is lawful [E]. Lastly, the enforceability of the award does not affect the arbitrability of the dispute [F].

A. THE TRIBUNAL HAS COMPETENCE TO DETERMINE ITS OWN JURISDICTION

The Tribunal is competent to determine its own jurisdiction on the basis of the doctrine of Kompetenz-Kompetenz,¹⁰⁷ which is a recognized principle under English law and the SIAC rules.¹⁰⁸ Moreover the validity of the arbitration agreement is not affected if the Tribunal holds the contract null and void.¹⁰⁹

B. VIOLATION OF FIDUCIARY DUTIES AND ACTS OF BAD FAITH FALL WITHIN THE SCOPE OF THE ARBITRATION AGREEMENT

The use of the phrase ‘all disputes relating to’ in the arbitration clause of the SHA indicates the broad nature of the arbitration clause¹¹⁰ and extends to claims beyond the contract.¹¹¹ Article 6 of the SHA is broad as it covers ‘all disputes relating to the SHA’. If the clause is ‘broadly worded, it will catch breaches of directors duties which are imposed by law and equity’.¹¹² When the corporation is party to the arbitration agreement, the director’s duties would fall within the scope of the arbitration agreement.¹¹³

C. THE INTRA-CORPORATE DISPUTE IS ARBITRABLE UNDER THE LAWS OF ENGLAND

a. FIDUCIARY DUTIES AND ACTS OF BAD FAITH OF DIRECTORS IS ARBITRABLE

The Arbitral Tribunal is competent to arbitrate on the violations of fiduciary duties and acts of bad faith of the directors. Arbitrability is a broad concept with few prescriptive rules as to its scope and application.¹¹⁴ There are neither ‘English statutory provisions nor common law rules’,¹¹⁵ which restrict the arbitration of certain intra-corporate disputes. Therefore, the ‘permissive approach’¹¹⁶ is used for the determination of the arbitrability of the dispute.¹¹⁷ Inarbitrability under English law has been accepted to be not an ‘issue which goes to the jurisdiction of the tribunal.’¹¹⁸ A shareholders’ agreement to arbitrate corporate and management disputes is permissible if it does not ‘affect third party rights or is contrary to public policy.’¹¹⁹ Here, all relevant parties are party to the arbitration (i.e., shareholders and the corporation). The arbitrability of the dispute is not contrary to the public policy of England. Both these conditions are satisfied in the present case and hence the dispute is arbitrable. The EAA does not specify which disputes are arbitrable¹²⁰ and as disputes concerning intra-corporate,¹²¹ shareholder disputes,¹²² competition law¹²³ are arbitrable, fiduciary duties are also arbitrable. The presumption is always in favor of arbitrability.¹²⁴

When the relief granted does not affect third parties then ‘orders for regulations of the company’s affairs’ is within the scope of relief that can be granted by the Arbitral Tribunal. Jurisdictional limitations were no more than ‘practical consequences’ of choosing arbitration, and did not affect whether the subject matter is arbitrable.¹²⁵ The ECA does not limit the scope of intra-corporate dispute arbitration and has allowed arbitration as a means for shareholders to resolve disputes with the board of directors.¹²⁶ If all the relevant parties submit to arbitration, ‘insolvency or intra-companies disputes would be perfectly arbitrable.’¹²⁷ It is accepted that fiduciary duties of the directors are arbitrable.¹²⁸ The absence of an attempt to define arbitrability¹²⁹ is based on recognizing party autonomy and ‘drastically the extent of intervention by the courts in the arbitral process’.¹³⁰ The disputes of fraud and illegality have been held to be arbitrable, with court applying a narrow approach, which would not render disputes as inarbitrable.¹³¹ This approach can be similarly being applied in the case of arbitrability of corporate disputes in case of fraud and illegality.

b. THE ARBITRABILITY OF THE DISPUTE DOES NOT CONTRAVENE THE PUBLIC POLICY OF ENGLAND

In *Fulham*¹³², it was stated that there was no public policy reason to render inarbitrable an arbitration agreement concerning disputes of the internal management of a company.¹³³ Courts¹³⁴ have held that arbitrators should not be excluded from the application of public policy rules.¹³⁵ The court accepted that disputes concerning ‘internal management of a company’ and where the company’s affairs have been conducted in a manner unfairly prejudicial to the interests of its members, there are no issue of public interest being affected.¹³⁶ This is in consonance with *Russell*¹³⁷ and Fulham,¹³⁸ which recognize the primacy of freedom of contract over public policy measures.¹³⁹ Arbitrators should not be ‘excluded from applying national rules of public policy nature’.¹⁴⁰ A dispute is not rendered inarbitrable if it involves public policy issues.¹⁴¹ If all relevant parties submit to arbitration, insolvency or intra-company disputes will be perfectly arbitrable.¹⁴² An arbitrator should be entitled to apply the principles and rules of public policy and grant redress.¹⁴³ The arbitrability of the dispute cannot be denied only on the ground that the ‘mandatory provisions of law or a given material public policy make the claim null and void or its execution impossible’.¹⁴⁴ *Beattie*¹⁴⁵ does not prevent the shareholders from initiating derivative action against the directors as it ruled on the ability of the directors¹⁴⁶ to invoke the arbitration clause. Arbitration serves the objectives of corporate governance¹⁴⁷ in contrast to litigation as the ‘means to protect investor’s interests holding directors liable in courts’.¹⁴⁸ Questions of breach of directors’ duties and acts of bad faith are arbitrable¹⁴⁹ as there is no sufficient public interest.¹⁵⁰ This public policy concern of arbitration is absent in the present case, as the shareholders and corporation are party to the SHA.¹⁵¹ The emphasis on party autonomy provides for flexibility regarding procedural rules and confidentiality over litigation.¹⁵² The use of public policy for the determination of inarbitrability of a dispute has diminished relevance¹⁵³ and has limited application in determining the scope of arbitrability.¹⁵⁴ The accusation that arbitration of fiduciary duties reduces the precedential development of company law cases has been rejected and ‘does not compromise the existing social value of the courts’.¹⁵⁵ Commentators¹⁵⁶ have suggested that there is a public interest in arbitrating corporate disputes to avoid the excessive costs associated with shareholder litigation. Therefore, the disputes within companies, which have no direct impact on third parties, then there can be ‘no reason’ that they would be inarbitrable.¹⁵⁷

D. THE ARBITRAL TRIBUNAL HAS THE POWER TO REVIEW THE REASONS FOR THE DECISION TAKEN BY THE DIRECTORS OF AIR MEDIA

The courts in common law countries have held that merely because a question arises under a company law enactment, it does not render the dispute inarbitrable.¹⁵⁸ The reasoning that ‘statutory power which the court would not have at common law apart from the statutory provision, does not mean that an arbitrator does not have the similar power.’¹⁵⁹ The reason that an arbitrator cannot grant all the remedies of the court, does not result in rendering the ‘arbitration agreement of no effect.’¹⁶⁰ Specific provisions denoting the court’s power to adjudicate do not exclude arbitration.¹⁶¹ The Tribunal has the power to determine the reasons of the directors gave for the Governments termination of the CLA.

E. THE ENFORCEABILITY OF THE ARBITRAL AWARD DOES NOT AFFECT THE ARBITRABILITY OF THE DISPUTE

A narrow view has been adopted on non-arbitrability as a ground for non-enforcement of the arbitral award.¹⁶² The national courts should ‘subordinate domestic notions of arbitrability to the international policy favoring commercial arbitration’.¹⁶³ The arbitral award will not be denied enforceability on the grounds of public policy, as arbitrability of fiduciary duties of the directors does not violate Arberia’s public policy. Unless the remedies sought effect third parties, intra-corporate disputes are arbitrable.¹⁶⁴ Exclusive jurisdiction of certain of courts for certain disputes does not exclude arbitration.¹⁶⁵ The dispute does not become inarbitrable if it involves issues of public policy or mandatory law.¹⁶⁶ The application of the mandatory

i. THE GOVERNMENT'S TERMINATION OF THE CLA IS LAWFUL

The termination of the CLA by the Government is lawful and in accordance with the laws of Arberia. The arguments of the Claimants in this regard are fourfold. Firstly that CLA validly terminated in accordance with Article 9 of the CLA. Secondly the termination for convenience is valid under Article 8. Thirdly the necessary approvals were not taken by Air Media in addition to material violations of the CLA. In Arguendo the policy violations in the allotment of the license would render the CLA termination lawful under Arberian law.

I. THE TERMINATION OF THE CLA UNDER ARTICLES 8 AND 9 IS LAWFUL UNDER ARBERIAN LAW.

a. THE INVOCATION OF FORCE MAJEURE IS A VALID GROUND FOR THE TERMINATION OF THE CLA

In order to satisfy the conditions of force majeure, firstly the impediment is beyond the control of the non-performing party¹⁶⁸. Secondly, this could not have been foreseen at the time of entering into the contract.¹⁶⁹ The invocation of force majeure is to 'save the performing party from the consequences of anything over which he has no control.'¹⁷⁰ The contractual obligations in the present case, have become impossible to perform¹⁷¹ due to the sovereign decision of the government to not allocate the spectrum. The change in government policy regarding the utilization of the S-Band renders the contractual obligations of Kosmix frustrated.¹⁷² The responsibility of state enterprises for acts of public authority due to force majeure are based on the separation between the state enterprise and the state.¹⁷³ The acts of state in the form of administrative acts, due to the presumption that a state will not have its executive organs act to the detriment of its own state enterprise, should not be considered force majeure.¹⁷⁴ This presumption is not applicable if it can be prima facie proved that the administrative act was caused by general considerations not connected with this contract.¹⁷⁵ The three factors that are considered in the case of a state enterprise invoking force majeure is that firstly the state entity must possess a distinct legal identity from that of the state,¹⁷⁶ secondly the state entity must not act in collusion with the State to bring about the action that leads to force majeure,¹⁷⁷ and thirdly that the actions of the State must be ‘either an act of state or a political decision of national sovereignty outside of the state’s purely pecuniary interest in the commercial transaction.’¹⁷⁸ Kosmix exercises its own discretion regarding commercial transactions,¹⁷⁹ hence, as a state enterprise can rely on the force majeure clause. Where a state enterprise was subject to the authority of a Ministry and was denied licenses, the court held that the enterprise can invoke the force majeure clause.¹⁸⁰ Where the contract is cancelled due to a political campaign, then the state enterprise can declare force majeure, the ‘corporate veil may not be pierced simply because the state approved the contract.’¹⁸¹ Here, cancellation of the contract primarily based on the considerations of political decisions and national interest of the sovereign, which are valid cause for termination of the CLA under Article 8.¹⁸² The governmental policies regarding allocation of satellite spectrum prevailing at the time of conclusion of the CLA in 2005 have varied, with the S-Band spectrum necessary for strategic requirements and societal services. The Supreme Court¹⁸³ has stated that ‘Spectrum has been internationally accepted as a scarce natural resource which is susceptible to degradation in case of inefficient utilization’¹⁸⁴ based on the public trust doctrine¹⁸⁵. The allocation of spectrum in violation of these principles would render the CLA unlawful.

b. KOSMIX COULD NOT HAVE REASONABLY PREVENTED THE ANNULMENT OF THE CLA BY THE CCS

Kosmix was obligated under law to disclose the committee report and recommend an annulment of the CLA to the Space Commission, which is necessarily exercised in different roles Chairman of ARSO and Secretary of DoS. Kosmix did exercise all its powers in order to prevent the annulment and the decision of the Cabinet Committee on Security was independent of the acts of Kosmix. In the present case the event was not within the Kosmix's control, as several factors effected the decision arrived at by the CCS, rather than solely relying on the fact that it was reasonable for Kosmix to not have drawn the attention of the CCS to the irregularities in the CLA.

c. THE TERMINATION OF THE CLA IS VALID UNDER ARTICLE 8

Under Article 4, Kosmix was responsible for the necessary governmental approvals relating to orbital slot and frequency clearances, but the government was not obligated to provide the clearance considering the strategic requirements. Article 8 of the CLA allows for termination based on convenience, whereby Kosmix was unable to obtain the necessary frequency approval before the pre-shipment review of the satellite.

d. AIR MEDIA'S ACTS CONSTITUTED REPEATED MATERIAL VIOLATIONS OF THE CLA

The SIAC Rules 16.2¹⁸⁶ state that the 'Tribunal shall determine the relevance, materiality and admissibility of all evidence. Evidence need not be admissible in law.' Therefore the Committee reports of the experts¹⁸⁷ and as concurred in the clarification, holds that these allegations in the report do hold validity to adjudicate the dispute. The CLA recorded Air Media's representations and warranties that, Air Media had developed its own technology for S-DMB broadcasting and delivery, which was contradictory to the findings of the Committee, which constitutes a material violation of the CLA under Article 5.

II. IN ARGUENDO THE POLICY VIOLATIONS IN THE ALLOTMENT OF THE LICENSE WOULD RENDER THE CLA TERMINATION LAWFUL

¹⁸⁶ SIAC Rules, 2010, rule 16.2

¹⁸⁷ Procedural Order 1, Moot Clarification.

As the SDM-B technology is both terrestrial and satellite based, the Allocation of Business Rules¹⁸⁸ requires approvals from the Ministry of Telecommunications and the Ministry of Information & Broadcasting. The procedure followed for allocation was not in consonance with the DTH guidelines,¹⁸⁹ which require broadcasting services to not be used for telecommunication, requiring specific licenses from the competent authorities. Article 2.6.5 of the SatCom Policy was also violated as Kosmix signed the agreement to lease instead of DoS/ANSAT.¹⁹⁰

ii. THE FOUNDER DIRECTORS AND SPACE AGE DIRECTORS HAVE VIOLATED THEIR FIDUCIARY DUTIES

Directors have a fiduciary obligation towards the company,¹⁹¹ which requires the directors put the interests of the company first.¹⁹² Rules preventing conflict of interest are integral to the understanding of fiduciary duties.¹⁹³ The Board meeting of the directors of Space Age clearly proves that the intent of the Space Age directors was to ‘dominate Air Media and takeover its technology’¹⁹⁴ and to acquire the Claimant’s shareholding at discount. The intent of the voting pattern of Space Age directors violated their fiduciary duties, as they did not act in the best interests of the company.¹⁹⁵ Air Media had approached Kosmix under the SatCom policy, but entered into a contract with Kosmix in violation of the SatCom Policy. It proceeded with Aspiration-2 when there was no Cabinet approval of the same. Despite having knowledge of the fact that the CLA termination was beyond the control of Kosmix, the founder and Space Age directors continued to pursue the enforcement of the CLA.

4. THE DECISIONS TAKEN AT THE MEETING WERE INVALID

The meeting was invalid as there was non-compliance with statutory procedure [A] and that the Founder and Space Age directors did not act in the best interests of the Company [B].

As per laws in the England, directors are entitled to receive notice of Director's meetings. Directors are usually allowed by the articles to decide the manner in which their meetings are conducted and to permit any director to call a meeting.¹⁹⁶ Where the articles are silent with respect to specifics, these can be determined by the board. Resolutions are usually passed by a simple majority and directors have the right to one vote each.

i. NOTICE AND QUORUM IN A BOARD MEETING

Under the articles, any director may call a director's meeting by giving notice to all directors.¹⁹⁷ The quorum for a director's meeting is two unless the Directors decide otherwise.¹⁹⁸ The general rule is that the decision of the Directors must be taken either unanimously under art 8 or by majority at a director's meeting, though this not preclude a meeting passing a resolution unanimously. Similarly, in India, Sec. 286 and 287 deal with notice of meeting of directors and quorum to be present in a director's meeting respectively, being two directors or one third of the total number of director's respectively. Every notice of a meeting of a company must specify the statement of meeting to be transacted at the meeting.¹⁹⁹ One of the important contents is to state the business to be transacted at the meeting.²⁰⁰ Notice of board meeting has to be construed reasonably.²⁰¹ It must also be of reasonable length of time. A resolution was held to be invalid too short a notice was given and which did not state the purpose of the meeting. In the present case, the directors had decided to meet to decide whether continue with legal proceedings, however, the directors decided to take a vote on the same, which was not earlier communicated in the notice.²⁰²

ii. RESOLUTIONS AND VOTING AT BOARD MEETINGS

Decisions taken at Board meetings are by formal resolution. A decision recorded in the minutes will be a valid decision of the Board, provided that the decision is within the competence of the Board, in accordance with provisions of law and articles of the company, the directors were not disqualified or otherwise ineligible to participate in the proceedings and vote.²⁰³ If a director convenes a meeting with the object of getting the resolution passed, but deliberately omitted to include them on the agenda, it will amount to active concealment of a fact by one having knowledge or belief that the fact will amount to fraud.²⁰⁴ Regulation 74(1) of the articles provides for a majority rule with regard to the decisions taken at Board Meetings, provided that the decisions are within the competence of the board, in accordance with the provisions of law and articles, a duly convened and constituted meeting, etc.²⁰⁵ However, the majority rule shall not apply when the articles provide for a certain decision to be taken to be by the whole body of directors or group of directors.²⁰⁶ The SHA provided for Class A shareholders to veto any decision to commence legal proceedings or arbitration, which was not allowed in the 27th December meeting, and the other directors violated the terms of SHA.

B. SPACE AGE AND FOUNDER DIRECTORS VIOLATED THEIR FIDUCIARY DUTIES

A director's fiduciary duty is 'the fundamental duty of a director to act in good faith in the best interests of his company.'²⁰⁷ A Director has a duty of honesty and duty to act bona fide may be regarded as a composite obligation.²⁰⁸ As the board owes a fiduciary duty to the company²⁰⁹, a minority shareholder can bring a derivative action against an act of the board or an individual director.²¹⁰ The Space Age Directors had vested interests in the exit of Blue Sky Directors from Air Media.²¹¹ Blue Sky was not allowed to exercise their veto right nor did they vote in favor of Blue Sky as per the SHA.²¹²

a. REMEDIES WITHIN THE POWER OF THE ARBITRAL TRIBUNAL

The remedial powers of an international tribunal are defined by the parties' arbitration agreement.²¹³ Most arbitration legislation is silent with regard to the arbitrators' remedial powers.²¹⁴ Section 48 of the EAA grants Arbitral Tribunal's the power to grant declaratory relief²¹⁵ as well as specific performance.²¹⁶ Arbitrators have broad powers to grant relief a court cannot²¹⁷ and may grant equitable relief that a Court could not.²¹⁸ This gives arbitrators broad powers to resolve disputes.²¹⁹ The arbitrator may order an accounting, appraisal or valuation, or serve as a tiebreaker in the event of a deadlock of the board.²²⁰ Courts have upheld orders of declaratory relief²²¹ and injunctive relief²²². In virtually no case, is it appropriate for the possibility of difficulties in enforcement, against a party that might refuse to comply with its obligations under the award, to justify withholding otherwise appropriate relief.²²³ Therefore, the tribunal can pass a declaratory relief as well as specific performance.

a) WITHDRAWAL OF NOTICE OF ARBITRATION

i) VOTING RIGHTS OF BLUE SKY TO COMMENCE LEGAL PROCEEDING/ARBITRATION

The Claimant's directors had the right to veto any decision of the board of the company to commence legal proceedings or arbitration,²²⁴. Class B shareholders had the right to which veto any decision of company to commence legal proceedings.²²⁵ Thus, Members have a recourse where the action is brought against directors to enforce duties owed to the company.²²⁶ The Claimant Directors were not allowed to exercise their rights, and Air Media issued a notice of Arbitration based on an invalid meeting. The meaning of litigation has to be determined as 'judicial controversy or contest in a court of law whether it is civil or criminal litigation'.²²⁷ The Court in *Fulham*²²⁸ states that the tribunal has the power to grant the necessary relief as in the present case, all parties are subject to the SHA. Therefore, the Tribunal has the power to withdraw the notice of arbitration.

PRAYER

In the light of the facts stated, issues raised, authorities cited and arguments advanced the Counsel for the Claimant respectfully requests the Tribunal to adjudge and declare:

1. That the SHA, and all the parts of Article 1, are valid under the applicable law;
2. That specific performance can be granted for the valid parts of Article 1;
3. That the Government's termination of the CLA was lawful and justified;
4. That the Founder directors and the Space Age directors violated their fiduciary duties, acted in bad faith and breached the SHA;
5. That the decisions taken at the 27 December 2010 meeting were invalid;
6. That Air Media can be ordered to withdraw the notice of CLA Arbitration;

And pass such other order or orders as the Hon'ble Tribunal may deem fit in the interest of justice, equity and good conscience.

All of which is humbly prayed.
